The Open Source Masters

Overview:

Ingres is hosting The Open Source Masters golf tournament to be held on the south course at Golfpark Idstein on 18 September, 2009. The course is 30 minutes north of Frankfurt and Wiesbaden. Sponsors and participants are now invited to sign up and be part of this exciting event. Depending on your level of sponsorship, you may have between 2-4 players included in your sponsorship. Players will be IT professionals of all skill levels, and paired into foursomes in this scramble, best-ball format with shotgun start.

Multiple contests are included on many of the holes with awards being presented after the day of play at the reception following the tournament. You may even win € 1,000 in a hole-in-one contest, along with many other prizes. The award winning onsite restaurant will provide morning coffee and pastries, a pre-tournament BBQ lunch, beverage carts, and the reception. Snacks and drinks are even provided at two holes (#6 & #15).

The course golf pros will be available at the driving range to give tips and free advise. There is also an extensive chipping and putting course for practice and non-golfers to enjoy.

Ingres will be sponsoring a Charity by donating 100% of funds received from the evening's silent auction.

The tournament website, www.theopensourcemasters.com, includes much more detailed information including lodging suggestions, directions to the course, and online registration to sign up for sponsorship holes and/or player only participation, which is very limited and on a first come first served basis.

The south course has a length of 6,140 m (gentlemen), 5,401 m (ladies), with optimal golf technology and state of the art design, and with four Par 3, ten Par 4, and four Par 5, the course offers a challenge for the professional and all amateur classes. Golfpark Idstein has already been the venue twice for the international PGA senior Championship as well as numerous firm tournaments. It now has a FIVE star rating and is sought out as one of Germany's best courses. There are wide fairways, numerous sand bunkers, and four water obstacles, that add to the challenge and competition of all players.

The Golfpark Idstein is nearby the main metropolis of Frankfurt, and the cultural city of Wiesbaden at the edge of the historically important former Nassau residence Idstein. The golf course is on approximately 160 hectares and is the largest golf oasis in the Rhine Main area. The Golfpark Idstein was designed with a Par 72 challenge, and built by world renowned golf experts, Heinz of Germany.
